CITY HALL NOW HOME TO FREE WI-FI

Visitors to Peabody City Hall can now access free Wi-Fi Internet service according to Mayor Edward A. Bettencourt, Jr.

The Mayor unveiled the new feature which enables those using portable devices such as laptops, tablets and smart phones to connect to the Internet while attending public meetings or conducting other business.

“We need to adapt to changing times,” Mayor Bettencourt said. “Peabody residents and others doing business at City Hall should have access to the same 21st century technology that they utilize in other areas of their lives.”

Bettencourt hailed the new service as just the beginning of Peabody’s efforts to improve access to technology and streamline the customer service experience for residents and others doing business with the City.

“Certainly I want to explore any and all opportunities to increase our bandwidth throughout the City of Peabody,” Bettencourt said. “Taxpayers have every right to expect their city government to operate efficiently and economically. We will continue to leverage the technology at our disposal to achieve that goal.”
